MERCY JUSTICE

LONDON, December 22. 1739.

Extract of a Letter from the Hague.

'THE ſending of a Miniſter from Spain into the North, is look'd upon here as a Piece of Policy concerted between the Courts of France and Madrid, the former not having yet entirely abandoned the Deſign of gaining the King of Denmark, which is intended to be attempted next Spring, by making him an Offer of a larger Subſidy than was before propoſed to him, to which likewiſe will be added, a Promiſe of great Advantages in Commerce to the Daniſh Nation by both France and Spain, neither of which Courts will be wanting in Endeavours to draw that Prince into the Intereſt of the Houſe of Bourbon. The King of Sweden too will not fail of doing his utmoſt towards effecting this Deſign, and with that View the Count de Teſſin is to go to Copenhagen. But it's believed by People who well know the Diſpoſition of the Daniſh Court, that all their Attempts to draw his Daniſh Majeſty from purſuing the Meaſures he is at preſent enter'd into, will prove ineffectual.

Liſbon, Dec. 10. By ſome Veſſels arrived here we are inform'd, that the Spaniſh Garriſon at Oran ſuffers much for want of Proviſions; and the more ſo, by reaſon the Engliſh Shipping ſeize ſuch Veſſels as carry any there. 'Tis alſo added, that the Moors in that Neighbourhood have of late left off furniſhing that Garriſon with any Proviſions, and that they chuſe rather to diſpoſe of them to the Britiſh Squadron. They flatter themſelves at Gibraltar, that theſe Circumſtances may, perhaps, oblige the Spaniards to abandon Oran, in which Caſe the Engliſh poſſibly may take Poſſeſſion of it.

Hague, Dec. 19. O. S. The late Rumour at Petersbourg of a Conſpiracy diſcovered there againſt the Government, was but too well founded, and 'tis certain now, that the Grand Council, which we were told, was lately held there with a ſtrong Guard of Soldiers before the Gate of the Palace, ſat upon the Subject of this important Diſcovery, and the Means of ſecuring the guilty Perſons, both Principals and Accomplices that were withdrawn. This Affair, which has taken up almoſt all Count Oſterman's Time for three Months paſt, in order to get to the Bottom of it, has ſince been purſued with very great Secrecy; and juſt now we hear, that there has been a grand Execution at Petit Novogrod, of ſeveral of the Bojars and Great Men of the Ruſſian Empire, the Heads of a Conſpiracy formed againſt the Czarina, to diſturb the Tranquility of that Empire, and bring about a general Revolution. This Execution is not performed in a private but in a publick Manner, and four Perſons of a diſtinguiſhed Family have therein loſt their Lives by the Sword and the Bar, that is to ſay, have been broke upon the Wheel. Others have ſuffer'd various Kinds of Puniſhment, and been chaſtiſed after the Manner of the Ruſſians, ſo that the leaſt Guilty have had a Puniſhment in Proportion to their Guilt, and then baniſh'd to Siberia. This is ſaid to be the greateſt Execution that has been in that abſolute and deſpotic Empire ſince the Reign of the Czar Peter I. 'Tis certain, that thoſe unfortunate Gentlemen had held Correſpondencies abroad with the Enemies of the Ruſſian Government, and that their Conſpiracy was firſt detected by Intelligence from Foreign Parts.

London, Dec. 22. By a private Letter from Paris we are inform'd, that there is a ſecret Article in the laſt Treaty of Alliance concluded between the Kings of France and Spain, whereby the former engages to make good the Loſſes which the latter has from time to time ſuſtain'd in Italy. The King of France, in order to fulfil his Engagement, is going to make the Infant Don Philip King of Corſica; and, it's ſaid, by his Power and Intereſt will procure him ſome other conſiderable Italian Poſſeſſions. There is another ſecret Article, which ſtipulates the Forces each is to ſupply the other with in caſe of War. The ſame Letter adds, that notwithſtanding this laſt Article, nothing at preſent looks there like ſuccouring of Spain; whether from a Belief that this Crown has not yet any Occaſion for Supplies, or from an Opinion, that taking Part with Spain when the Britiſh Nation has in ſome Degree weaken'd itſelf, will be doing it the moſt effectually, the Writer of this Letter does not determine.

We hear that Admiral Haddock has ſent 5 Men of War to Malta, to demand of the Grand Maſter of that Order the Reſtitution of the Engliſh Ships which his Veſſels and Galleys have taken, by Commiſſions from the King of Spain; and at the ſame time to renounce ſuch Commiſſions, which are contrary to the Eſtabliſhment and Statutes of the Order: But if, contrary to Expectation, the Grand Maſter refuſes to comply with theſe Propoſals, the Engliſh have Orders to treat the Malteze as Pyrates.

On Thurſday Night laſt, Orders were ſent from the Admiralty Office to Portſmouth, for Vice Admiral Balchen to ſail with the utmoſt Expedition with Ten of His Majeſty's Ships of War from that Harbour, to cruize off Cape Finiſterre and Cape St. Mary.

Five Ships of War are ordered with all Expedition to the Weſt Indies.

Mr. Shafto, whoſe Uncle is one of the Knights of the Shire for the County of Durham, is made firſt Lieutenant of the Marines.

The Marines are to wear Caps, and uſe the Grenadiers March.

Such of the 1800 Men, as are to be taken out of the ſtanding Regiments for the Marine Service, as ſhall offer themſelves to accept of the Exchange, will be allowed 20s. per Man Bounty-Money, and 10s. per Man for Shirts and Shoes to go on Board.

Vienna,

Vienna, Dec. 23. A Grand Conference was held a few Days ago in the Emperor's Preſence, about the Affair of the Veldt Marſhal Count Seckendorff, and, it is ſaid, a Reſolution has been taken, that the Count ſhall be reſtored to all his Employments and Dignities, upon certain Conditions which he is to accept; which Conditions the Council of War has Orders to draw up forthwith, and lay them before his Imperial Majeſty for his Approbation.

The Commiſſion for enquiring into the Conduct of the Generals Wallis and Neuperg, have already aſſembled twice at the Count de Harrach's, and examined the Letters and other Pieces writ by thoſe Generals in their Defence, but have not yet come to any Reſolution concerning them.

From the Political State for November, 1739.

Whitehall, October 31. This Day George Harriot, Maſter of a Merchant Ship called the Vigilant, came to the Office of his Grace the Duke of Newcaſtle, his Majeſty's principal Secretary of State, and gave the following Account: That he was at Gibraltar with his Veſſel on the 2d or 3d of October, O. S. and that either on the 2d or 3d, Rear-Admiral Haddock, in the Sommerſet, with three other of his Majeſty's Ships under his Command, came into the Bay of Gibraltar, and brought with him a Spaniſh Ship of about 250 Ton and 14 Guns, (the Name unknown) bound from the Carraccas to Cadiz, which he had taken within Gunſhot of Cadiz. Mr. Harriot ſays, that the proper Officers at Gibraltar were taking an Account of the Cargo of the ſaid Spaniſh Ship, which they had not finiſhed when he ſailed from Gibraltar on the 7th Inſtant, O. S. but that it was generally thought the Value of the Cargo of this Ship is greater than that of the St. Joſeph, the other Carraccas Ship taken ſome Days before by Rear-Admiral Haddock.

November the 3d came Advice, That a Spaniſh Ship, Burthen 300 Tons, was drove into Milford-Haven by Streſs of Weather, where ſhe was immediately ſeized, and it is not doubted but will be condemned. She was laden with Wool and Iron, bound for Havre de Grace, and it is ſaid came from Bilboa.

Capt. Harriot, who brought an Account to his Grace the Duke of Newcaſtle's Office of the taking of another of the Caraccas Ships, had a Bank Bill of 50 l. ſent him on Wedneſday laſt, for the good News. The ſaid Ship remains at Gibraltar, to which Place ſhe was carried immediately after her being taken by Admiral Hadock.

Madrid, Jan. 5. As ſoon as the Duke of Ormond arrives here, a Grand Council of War will be held on the Expedition which the Court intends to undertake. The Earl Marſhal, Brother to General Keith in the Ruſſian Service, is arriv'd here, and we are aſſur'd is to have a Command in that Expedition. We never ſaw ſo great a Number of Iriſh in this City as at preſent: Moſt of them ſollicit Employment in the Army, and there are ſeveral Perſons of Diſtinction among them.

Exeter Jan. 9. Draughts have been made out of the ſeveral Companies of Brigadier General Handaſyd's Regiment quarter'd here, of the ſhorteſt Men, in order for their being made Marines.

Dublin, Jan. 11. Extract of a Letter from Dundrum dated Dec. 11.

"By Letters from Killough, we are inform'd, that Lieut. Cockburn, and 30 Men in the Pyntire Tender, being caſt away there on Saturday Evening, in the Hurricane of Wind; the Lieut. and 15 Men were ſaved, but much bruis'd upon the Rocks, and in great want of Cloaths; the Lieutenant is bruis'd moſt, and vomits Blood, ſo that his Life is in great danger. Before he quitted the Ship, he ſhook all the Sailors by the Hand, bid them have Courage, ſaid, they could die but once, and he would have them face Death like Men of Courage; he was the laſt who left the Veſſel, and muſt have loſt his Life, but for two of the Men, who at the hazard of their own ſav'd his. The Moment they found themſelves on Shoar, they congratulated each other, and receved their Officer with open Arms----Generous Souls! who are fit to ſerve their Country upon any Occaſion. The Ship when ſhe came to Shoar broke all to Shatters.

Newcaſtle, Jan. 12. The Froſt ſtill continues ſo ſtrong and in all Appearance likely to hold, that moſt of the Handicraft Tradeſmen in theſe Parts, are deprived of following their ſeveral Employments, by the Severity of Cold: The famous River Tyne, on which depends moſt of our Trade, is frozen ſo hard, that all manner of Diverſions are daily purſued thereon, as Sliding, Jumping, Running, Foot-ball, Dreſſing of Meat, and ſelling all kind of Liquors in Tents, and is like a Fair, by the Concourſe of People of both Sexes.

London, Jan. 19. An Extract of a Letter from Paris.

'The Conſul of France at Algiers has ſent hither the following Particulars of the Project form'd by the Engliſh in reſpect to Oran; (that is to ſay) He having perceiv'd ever ſince the begining of the Month of October, that the Britiſh Conſul had frequently private Conferences with the Dey and two of the principal Members of the Divan, was as attentive as poſſible to find out what paſs'd at theſe Conferences. That by taking a good deal of Pains he had diſcover'd that this Conſul had repreſented to the Dey, that this Juncture was the moſt favourable to the Algerines for retaking Oran from the Spaniards, for that they might ſafely cauſe Troops to advance towards that Place in order to attack it, whilſt Admiral Haddock with his Squadron cut off all Communication with it from Spain. That this Project was very much approv'd of by the Dey and the Divan; but at the ſame time they repreſented, that the Succour of Troops which they had ſent to the Dey of Tunis, had render'd them incapable of attacking Oran ſo vigorouſly as was neceſſary: They however promis'd that they would aſſemble ſome thouſands of Men as expeditiouſly as poſſible, and cauſe them to march towards that Place, in order to diſturb the Garriſon. The French Conſul has alſo advis'd, that the Engliſh likewiſe endeavour, by their Intrigues in the Empire of Morocco, to induce ſome of the Pretenders to the Throne to take Advantage of the preſent Circumſtance of Things, by advancing towards Ceuta, and attempting to take that Place, which could now no more than Oran be ſuccour'd by Sea, A Courier carried Orders for the Count de la Marck to make the following Repreſentation to the Court of Spain; viz. That as it has been agreed between the two Courts that France ſhould remain Neuter in the beginning of the Rupture between Spain and Great Britain, his moſt Chriſtian Majeſty earneſtly wiſh'd, that what had been regulated upon this Subject might be ſtrictly obſerv'd by the Subjects of his Catholick Majeſty; for that the Court of France had conceiv'd high Diſpleaſure, upon hearing that Privateers from the Coaſts of Spain had enter'd the Rivers and Harbours of France ſituate upon the Ocean, in Queſt of Engliſh Ships, in order to take them. That what had lately paſs'd at Bourdeaux was a thing ſo flagrant and ſo inexcuſable, that it was impoſſible to avoid giving Attention to the Complaints of the Britiſh Ambaſſador thereupon, and to cauſe the four Engliſh Ships taken by the Spaniards upon the River Garronne to be reſtored to them. Wherefore his Moſt Chriſtian Majeſty earneſtly entreated the King of Spain, to give Orders that the Privateers commiſſion'd by him might not break through the Regulation ſettled by the two Courts.

Jan. 24. Extract of a Letter from the Hague.

"The Abbe de la Ville, who is charged with the Affairs of France in the Abſence of the Marquis de Fenelon, has receiv'd expreſs Orders from his Court to do his utmoſt to prevent the Reports which are ſpread about, that France will aſſiſt Spain, from making any Impreſſion on the Members of the Government. It's pretty evident, that the former is throughly diſpoſed to do every Thing to weaken Great Britain; but ſhe chuſes to do this indirectly, and to obtain her End by the way of Negotiation in which ſhe for the moſt Part ſucceeds, rather than that of Arms, which has almoſt as frequently fail'd her eſpecially in her Conflicts with Great Britain. 'Tis by the former Method that ſhe had ſucceeded in Sweden, and hopes to do ſo firſt at Petersburgh, and afterwards at Copenhagen; whereas if ſhe had publickly taken the Part of Spain, theſe Powers would certainly have taken Umbrage at it, and plainly perceiv'd, that the Deſign of France was to ruin Great Britain; and this Notion would certainly have kept them from treating with a Power which muſt neceſſarily in that Caſe have appear'd to them very dangerous; beſides, the States General would then no longer have kept the Neutrality. To all theſe Reaſons another may be ſtill added, which is the King of France's Parole of Honour given to the Emperor, than he will be no Party in the War between Great Britain and Spain. If therefore the States General make an Augmentation of their Troops, 'twill be as much in reſpect to the Conſequences that the Affair of Juliers and Bergue may have, as for any other Reaſon; and the Members of the Government are pleaſed that they can make this Augmentation at a Time when the King of Pruſſia can have no room to ſuſpect that it has any relation to him. It ſeems alſo as though France was quite unconcern'd about it; for they write from Paris, that when M Van Hoey went to compliment Cardinal de Fleury on New-Year's Day, his Eminence ſaid, "You cannot doubt of my wiſhing the greateſt Happineſs to the Republick, being ſatisfied it is of the Number of our Friends; and I am very ſure, that if it augments its Troops, that does not the leaſt in the World regard us.

The Officers of the ſix Regiments of Marines, to be new rais'd, we hear, could have compleated their ſeveral Companies in Town, but it being thought proper to intermix them with Countrymen, they are repaired to their reſpective Quarters, to fill up their Complement.

PHILADELPHIA.

Saturday laſt about One o'Clock a Fire broke out in Mr. Hamilton's fine new Buildings near the Bridge; and the Wind being high, and the wood Work (which was unfiniſh'd) exceedingly dry'd by the long dry Weather, the whole was in Flames ſo ſuddenly and burnt ſo fiercely, that it was impoſſible to ſave any Part. The Loſs is very conſiderable; and is generally regretted, as thoſe Buildings when finiſh'd would have been a great Ornament to that Part of the Town.

We hear from Maiden Creek in this County, that on the 27th paſt, the Houſe of one Henry Weaver taking Fire was burnt down, and a great Quantity of very good Furniture, and Paper-Money deſtroyed. One of his Children periſhed in the Flames, and his Wife and another Chiid were much burnt, but like to do well.

And not long ſince, the Houſe of George Crane in the ſame Neighbourhood was deſtroyed by Fire, and two Children burnt to death.

We hear that the Firing of the Woods during the late dry Seaſon, has done conſiderable Damage to Fences, &c. in ſome Parts of the Country.
